

European drug regulator challenged over revolving door case involving former Director

Public health and transparency advocates ask the European Commission if rules regarding conflicts of interest have been sufficiently and duly respected in light of the EMA's decision to allow its former Executive Director to work within the private pharmaceutical sector just weeks after leaving his position with the drug regulatory agency.

Read the joint open letter

Read the joint press release