

Marcea Hennecke

Snakebite should not be a problem. We have the cure. It's not like malaria, where we are still searching for a fix. The fix exists. What we need is broad support to document the problem, educate, implement and distribute that fix. HAI has emerged as the lead organization in a global effort to see that happen. Their small, passionately-motivated, scientifically-driven and highly-effective team is working tirelessly towards the day when effective snakebite antivenins are widely and affordably available. The Hennecke Family Foundation is proud to be associated with their efforts.
